Cabin air filter $20.00

STEPS

1. Park and get into the passenger footwell - Park level, ignition off. The Sentra’s filter isn’t behind the glovebox - it’s under the passenger-side dash, against the firewall beside the center console. Slide the seat fully back, kneel in the footwell, and look up toward the consol...
2. Release the filter cover - Pull the rounded clip at the top of the cover downward until it pops free, then swing the cover down and out of the way. You’ll work mostly by feel in the tight space - the clip releases with a firm, steady pull. Don’t pry the housing ed...
3. Pull out the old filter - Reach in, squeeze the soft-sided filter gently between your fingers, and draw it straight out. Check the airflow arrow - it should face the front of the car - and note the small pull tab at the top for next time. A gray, matted filter...
4. Install the new filter - Feed the new filter in with the tab at the top and the airflow arrow pointing toward the front of the car, matching the old filter’s orientation. Compress the soft sides slightly through the opening, but seat it fully flat and square - a...
5. Refit the cover and test the HVAC - Swing the cover up until its top clip catches - tug it to confirm it’s latched. Run the HVAC on fresh air through every fan speed: airflow should feel noticeably stronger with no rattling or whistling. If a whistle appears, the cover isn...
